

---

Hello fellow Horticulturists.....

Posted by ILEACH - 2008/09/09 19:36

---

....from the Queen of the Hebrides.
Isle of Islay to be exact, hows life in Totnes these days?

=====

Re:Hello fellow Horticulturists.....

Posted by And Then We Hit A Truck - 2008/09/10 01:03

---

hullo ILEACH -- totnes is fairly soggy at the moment, less soggy than other parts of england but there you go, soggy is still soggy. we had a bit of sun today, but if you blinked you might've missed it! : )

how's things in the hebrides then?
i understand scotland has had a lovely summer this year, i know someone who went up for 3 weeks hols to see family during july and she didn't encounter a single drop of rain (lucky sod).

=====

Re:Hello fellow Horticulturists.....

Posted by ILEACH - 2008/09/10 17:19

---

Hi mate, thx for the welcome. Scotland has been lovely this year, apart from the Midges, vicious little buggers. Good weather for sea fishing, loch fishing and walking in the hills. Today has been a bit more normal though, horizontal rain, windy etc. Peace. Ileach

=====

Re:Hello fellow Horticulturists.....

Posted by ilovebud - 2008/09/10 17:41

---

greetings ILEACH

=====

Re:Hello fellow Horticulturists.....

Posted by Acidpete - 2008/09/10 19:26

---

hiho

welcome.

=====

Re:Hello fellow Horticulturists.....

Posted by And Then We Hit A Truck - 2008/09/14 15:13

---

ILEACH wrote:

Hi mate, thx for the welcome. Scotland has been lovely this year, apart from the Midges, vicious little buggers. Good weather for sea fishing, loch fishing and walking in the hills. Today has been a bit more normal though, horizontal rain, windy etc. Peace. Ileach

yes, autumn seems to have quickly approached, like since august :S

i've had a bad year with spiders and horse flies for some reason, i've managed to collect at least 8 bites this year.. grr!

=====