I think we could be on to something here - people will buy USB anything - so how should it work exactly?

It would have to do something cooler than heat it up... measure the users toke strength??

it could make a cone piece heat up to a high temprature then hav a device on top that creams it for you.

It has to have LED lights as well or it won't sell. And it needs to beep when ready in a rather stoned and slow manner.

maybe the bottom and top should have bearings so while you take a hit, the whole middle section could revolve faster and faster making some kind of cool vortex in the water?????:ohmy:

hmm - I am liking the vortex thing and yes, LED lights essential.

The main purpose of a bong is to cool the smoke though - how can we do that - built in ice maker?

I've been told that ice bongs are bad. you know how cold smoke sinks, imagine that but in your lungs. but it just gave me cool ideas on doing ice bongs then hanging upside down. heheh

The usb would have to report something to the computer, like, estimated lung capacity, determined from how long you can cream it. And and option for self creaming. and flashy LED's and beeping. Or an MP3 bong? A bong that lit itself could be dangerous. But... incredibly useful for when you run out of lighters. I want a bong with more or different user interaction because lighting and pulling just gets so dull. And it would have to be easily converted into a shottie too.

ideas people

Hmm, yes I am liking it - the toke strength monitor is great ;)

Now if we could only measure THC content on the way past...

Perhaps it could play a little fractal video thing with a trippy tune on your computer whilst your taking a hit from the bong.

I love it I love it!!

A fractal video thing .... that speeds up/slow down with your toke strength!! Wiiiicckkkkeeeedd!!

And when you have toked all you can it goes into its own groovy fractal thing while you sit back and sloooowwwly breath out...

Though I have to say - those visualisations that you see in most music players have been designed by someone who doesn't know what a spliff is... we could do waaay better than that...

maybe potseeds should design it i would definatly buy one. it should light it for you and have a picture of a half baked guy with his thumb up when u pull it. it should also give you a rating on how good a bong it was.
